WHO'S WHO IN THE INVITATION EVENT

- SEVENTH GLASGOW CHESS CONGRESS -

Many of you will have read in the Congress Programme that new records are set up more or less annually by the Congress and this year is no exception. 242 competitors are taking part in the Congress this weekend, thus setting a new Scottish record for the number of competitors at a tournament.

Facilities and playing conditions in the Langside Hall have never been surpassed at any Scottish Congress but this is not surprising when one considers the composition of the Congress Committee, Scottish Internationals G. Bonner and H.D. Holmes, W. Munn, E. Fitzjames, S. Mannion and J. Pursley, all of whom have made tremendous efforts to make the Congress the success it is.

This is how H.D. Holmes, Controller of the Invitation Event, describes this year's top tournament:

This year your Committee has decided to organise the principal event as an Invitation Tournament of 16 players. We have been extremely fortunate to have seven Internationals participating (four Scottish, two English and one Irish).

The player who takes even the slightest interest in Chess played outside his own Club must surely have heard of Mr. Golombek: an International Master, a former English Captain, the Chess Correspondent of "The Times", an eminent author (his books include "Capablanca's 100 Best Games" and "Modern Opening Strategy"), an arbiter of international repute (he refereed Botvinnik-Smyslov matches for the World Championship) and a Chess "Politician" (he is a member of F.I.D.E.'s Executive Committee). Next month he will be assisting the Swiss Chess Federation to run the Chess Olympiad in Lugano.

Michael Basman belongs to the present young school of English Players. He impressed Botvinnik with his prowess a couple of years ago and this year finished second in the British Championship.

Michael Littleton has also booked his ticket to Lugano - but he will be travelling with the Irish Team. He is currently rated No. 2 (behind W. Heidenfeld) and has two Irish Championship victories to his credit.

David Levy is an Englishman but is now living in Glasgow. He had the temerity to win this year's Scottish Championship at Ayr and has been selected to go to Lugano.

Ken McAlpine first played his way into the Chess headlines by beating Mr. Fairhurst in a game in the Scottish Championship while still at school. That year he was the runner-up - a performance which he was to repeat the following year. He was board 3 for Scotland in the Havana Olympiad.

Craig Pritchett finished seventh in this year's British Championship - a fine result for his first attempt. He also was a member of the last Scottish Olympic Party and his consistent play ensured the team a respectable score in the final section.

At the age of 16 Roderick McKay is the newest white hope that Scotland has produced. Already his mantelpiece is quite full for he has won such events as the Cathcart Club Championship, the Renfrewshire Open Championship and the Lanarkshire Easter Tournament. In July he was a member of the Scottish Universities' Team in Austria and scored 8 points from 13 games.

Racialist magazine indeed! For the benefit of those who believe "White Hope" has sinister overtones, we are glad to clarify that the phrase has the meaning "extremely promising player". We should also point out that Basman was only (?) seventh in the British last year.

From the Under 16:

White sacrifices a knight for 3 pawns then reduces to an ending but the black pieces combine well to produce a clever mating net. This game was entered in the "Best Game" prize competition. Juniors who wish to enter this should mark their scoresheet at the top "Best Game" before handing it to the Controller.

Those of you who take an interest in International Chess may like to know that Petrosian, the reigning World Champion, will play Spassky later this year for the title of World Chess Champion. In the final of the Candidates' Tournament, Spassky beat Korchnoi 6½ - 3½ and so qualified as Petrosian's challenger. We suggest that you browse around the "Chess" bookstall in the canteen for more details of International Chess.
